TWO FLYING TO AMERICA VIA AZORES ISLANDS

SGTS. ASSOLANT AND LEFEVRE LEAVE PARIS

TRAVEL IN "YELLOW BIRD"
MONOPLANE AT 7:05
A. M. TODAY

PLANE CARRIES NO RADIO SET.
SHIPS ASKED TO REPORT FLIERS

Paris, Sept. 4.—(UP)—Sergeants Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre started from LeBourget field at 7:05 A. M. today in a monoplane "Yellow Bird" for America via the Azores and Halifax.

The fliers carried 3,700 litres of fuel, 50 sandwiches, 30 bananas, coffee, champagne and brandy.

It was said the plane carried no radio set and ships at sea were asked to report passing of the craft.

The Yellow Bird probably carried a stowaway out over the Atlantic. He is Armento Lotti, 24, son of the wealthy proprietor of the Hotel Lotti. Young Lotti, who became an enthusiast over aviation when Ruth Elder stopped at the hotel last year, financed the expedition.

After the plane left, friends reported they saw him stowing away.

Le Bourget Field, France, Sept. 4.—The Yellow Bird, off on a mystery long distance flight, had been gone from Paris ten hours at 10:05 CST, today, without a report having been received of its progress.

The Yellow Bird carried Sergeants Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, of the French army, and probably two stowaways. Le Bourget officials were convinced that Armento Lotti, wealthy hotel man's son and financial backer of the flight, had stowed aboard, as well as Kellogg Briand, Assolant's pet puppy.

Major Weiss, squadron leader, said the Yellow Bird was headed for the Azores, and that on reaching there, they would decide whether to head for New York or Dakar, Africa.

Several mechanics testified they saw Lotti hiding under some covers back of the fuel tanks before the start. He probably will be obliged to make the whole trip lying on his stomach in a space little more than 18 inches high.

Le Bourget Field, France, Sept. 4.—The Yellow Bird landed at Casablanca, Morocco, at 4:40 P. M., it was announced today.

The plane in which Sergeants Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre started a long distance flight from here at 7:05 this morning was forced down by a leaky oil pipe, a message said.

MORE THAN 1,000 DEATHS FROM DENGUE FEVER

EPIDEMIC RAGING THROUGHOUT
GREECE WITH 300,000
SUFFERERS

PREMIER VENIZELOS AND FIVE
CABINET MEMBERS ALSO STRICKEN

London, Sept. 4.—(UP)—More than 1,000 deaths occurred through Greece as result of the epidemic of dengue fever and 300,000 persons are suffering—including Premier Venizelos and five other members of the cabinet, dispatches to London newspapers said today.

A dispatch to the Daily Mail said that there was general concern over Premier Venizelos' condition. He was reported previously as being confined in a hospital and suffering only slightly from the disease.

The health ministry, the Daily Mail said, reported that at present there were 300,000 cases throughout Greece and that tourists had been requested to postpone visits to the nation pending a cessation of the epidemic.

The Daily Express reported from Athens that there had been 1,000 deaths and that 1,000,000 persons had been attacked in the past two months.

The wife and son of the premier have been called home from Paris, it was announced. It was feared his fever would be complicated with an old heart ailment.

9 WAR PLANES FORCED TO GO BACK TO ATLANTA

FOR 2 HOURS THEY HAD AT-TEMPTED TO BREAK THROUGH
CLOUD BANKS

TRIED GOING OVER, UNDER AND THROUGH AND THEN GAVE IT UP

Augusta, Ga., Sept. 4.—(UP)—The nine huge war planes, en route from Langley field, Va., on a transcontinental trip to Los Angeles, were forced to return here at 9:15 A. M. today after two hours attempting to break through cloud banks, after taking off for Shreveport, La.

The planes flew over, under and through thick clouds and rain but the going became worse as the planes went westward. Major Hugh Knerr turned the flight back about 85 miles away, near Milledgeville, Ga. He hoped for a favorable weather report later today, to attempt the flight again.

Rockford Aviators Still Physically Fit After Weary Days Wandering in Greenland

HASSELL, CRAMER PLAN TO PROCEED TO THE COAST

TWO MEN ARRIVE AT MT. EVANS
LATE ON SUNDAY NIGHT

NEWS OF THEIR SAFETY FLASH-ED TO ROCKFORD, THEIR HOME TOWN

Julianehaab, Greenland, Sept. 4.—(UP)—Physically fit, although they spent two weeks wandering through little known parts of Greenland while they sought Mt. Evans, Bert Hassell and Parker D. Cramer today made plans to proceed to the Greenland coast.

The pilots of the airplane Greater Rockford, which was forced down on August 19 on the Sukkertoppen ice arm, expect to proceed to Holstensborg shortly.

Hassell and Cramer arrived at Mt. Evans—the destination of their flight from Cochrane, Ont.—late Sunday night. They were fatigued, cold and in need of food. Ever since their plane landed August 19, they had been beating a weary way through the unknown Greenland passes, seeking to find Mt. Evans.

Hassell and Cramer had attempted a flight from Rockford to Mount Evans and were lost for several days. News of their safety was flashed to Rockford Sunday, turning the city into a bedlam of joyous excitement.

They had attempted to fly to a special landing field that had been provided at Mt. Evans, where the University of Michigan now has an expedition, but in some manner lost their way. When their fuel supply was exhausted they had to start afresh.

They reached the expedition Sunday night. They immediately made plans to leave for Holstensborg by motorboat, where it is possible they will wait a ship to carry them back to the United States.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 4.—Rockford's two fliers, Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, have been instructed to use their own judgment in the matter of salvaging their plane, the "Greater Rockford," which is stranded on the ice of Greenland.

The fliers radioed the backers from the headquarters of the University of Michigan expedition at Mount Evans, advising that they had left the plane on the ice and asked whether they should attempt to salvage it.

Washington, Sept. 4.—Coast guard officials may order the cutter Marion to Greenland after Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, rescued fliers, whether the aviators' backers in Rockford, Ill., request such assistance or not, it was learned today.

Admiral Billard, guard commandant, studied charts and reports of conditions in Davis Straits preparatory to reaching a decision on the matter.

Services of the Marion, which for nearly two weeks sought the fliers, were offered to Mrs. Bert Hassell last night by Billard. On Saturday, when last it reported, the Marion was 400 miles south of Mt. Evans, Greenland, and proceeding southward.

Hastings, Minn., Sept. 4.—(UP)—The trial of C. W. Smeltzer, "reform" mayor, and Charles Zeman, alderman, both of South St. Paul, was to open in a special session of Dakota county district court here today.

The two officials are charged with accepting bribes in connection with South St. Paul bootlegging activities. Two indictments charging the two officials with accepting graft in 10 instances were returned by a grand jury July 10.

Prosecution was to be conducted by Chester Wilson, assistant attorney general of Minnesota. Defense was to be conducted by Thomas McMeekin, St. Paul, and D. L. Grannis, South St. Paul.

SEALER DOGGEREN REPORTS
SIGHTING EMPTY CASK NEAR SEVEN ISLANDS

Oslo, Norway, Sept. 4.—(UP)—Temporary hope that members of the Roald Amundsen party or the dirigible Italia envelope party might have been signalling by flares from an island off Spitzbergen slowly was abating today.

No further confirmation of the report has been heard while reports from Tromsø this morning said the sealer Doggeren had arrived there and had reported sighting an empty cask August 2 northeast of Seven Islands.

The craft also reported that on August 9 they sighted a big assembly of polar bears about 36 miles northeast of Foyne Island, prowling among objects on the ice. Members of the vessel believed it was possible that the Italia party might have landed there.

CONSIDER PROPOSALS TO AVERT THREATENED STRIKE OF RAIL MEN

Chicago, Sept. 4.—(UP)—A committee of officials of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors will meet with officers of western railroads here today to consider proposals to avert a threatened strike affecting 70,000 railway employees.

A. F. Whitney of Cleveland, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced last night that trainmen and conductors on 55 western roads had voted almost "one hundred per cent for a walkout."

The strike vote resulted from failure of previous conferences which lasted over a period of several months. A demand of from 10 to 18 per cent wage increase was asked by the trainmen.

NORTHWEST SHIPPERS TO CONFER ON 9 FOOT CHANNEL

St. Paul, Sept. 4.—(UP)—Northwest shippers, Mississippi river barge line officials and others interested in the construction of a nine-foot channel in the upper river, are expected to confer with Major General Edgar Jadwin, chief United States engineer, September 25, on development of the project.

General Jadwin declared in a telegram sent by an aide, that he would be prepared to conduct a meeting during which northwest men will protest the report of Major Charles L. Hall, Rock Island engineer, that the enlarged channel is inadvisable at this time.

An early meeting was asked in order that an appropriation bill could be passed by congress, granted the project had the approval of the government.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS PROBLEMS ARE LOST SIGHT OF

IN SHARP CONTRAST TO PRESI-DENTIAL CAMPAIGNS OF OTHER YEARS

IT APPEARS HOOVER AND SMITH
HAVE ENOUGH TO DE-BATE ABOUT

This is the fourth and last article of a series dealing with presidential campaign issues.

By PAUL FREDRIX
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 4.—Foreign affairs problems are almost lost sight of in the current presidential campaign, in sharp contrast with their prominence in 1916, 1920 and 1924.

It appears that Governor Alfred E. Smith and Herbert Hoover would have enough to debate this year if foreign affairs did not exist. It is doubted whether any democrats have bolted to Hoover because of his public endorsement of President Coolidge's foreign policies. It is equally doubtful whether any republicans have bolted to Smith because the governor has challenged republican foreign policies in almost every detail.

Official observers agree that the electorate has seemed unmoved by discussion of the occupation of Nicaragua, enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine or relations with Mexico. All these will be discussed during the campaign, but the headlines are expected to be largest and radio listeners most numerous when the candidates talk of problems nearer home, such as prohibition or farm relief.

But the candidates do differ on foreign affairs. Hoover has pointed with pride and Smith has viewed with alarm—whenever discussing foreign affairs.

It is notable, however, that Hoover has not thought it necessary to defend and Smith has not thought it necessary to attack the Chinese policy of the Coolidge administration. It may be inferred from this that the extremely friendly attitude of the state department toward China is one in which democrats concur with republicans.

In the renewed and extended arbitration and conciliation treaties, Smith sees instruments whose usefulness is materially lessened by foreign reservations relative to the right to wage defensive war. Smith questions the worth of the Kellogg anti-war treaty because he believes it does not strike at the causes of war.

Perhaps most far-reaching of Smith's foreign affairs policies is that in which he pledges himself to seek concerted action among all Latin American countries in any further enforcement of responsibilities arising from the Monroe Doctrine.

Hoover has endorsed the Coolidge policies which Smith assails. Hoover has said his foreign affairs policy would be based on what he described as the "two co-operating factors in the maintenance of peace—the building of good will by wise and sympathetic handling of international relations, and the adequate preparedness for defense."

Neither Smith nor Hoover advocates joining the League of Nations. In the arbitration, conciliation and anti-war treaties, Hoover sees progress toward the maintenance of peace along the formula stated by him.

GOV. AL SMITH ENGROSSED IN STATE AFFAIRS

GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS HAVE ACCUMULATED IN HIS OFFICE

WILL MAP OUT STRATEGIC CAM-PAIGN TO CARRY NEW YORK STATE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Albany, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith turned his attention today to state affairs, first to several governmental matters which have accumulated, and second to the vigorous and thorough campaign with which he and his leaders are planning to combat the Hoover movement now actively under way in this state.

While he is discussing state problems with officials, Gov. Smith will map out with his lieutenants the strategy of the New York presidential campaign. He and his advisers are working on the theory that New York holds the key to the "wet" east.

For this reason, the personality and influence of the democratic candidate will be used largely in the New York campaign. Smith will sound the opening call of the campaign at the state democratic convention at Rochester, October 1 and 2.

The governor's whole campaign speaking itinerary has been built with the New York campaign in mind so that he can be here for the state meeting. He will make an early swing, beginning a little after the middle of this month, will return for the Rochester meeting.

Democrats will make an active bid all over the country, including the farm states, but they figure it will take only a few outside states if they can put over Smith by the modification appeal in the eastern "wet" states.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—(UP)—John Colledge, son of President Coolidge, has no job at present, although he has several offers, he told newspapermen when he arrived here today. Young Coolidge reached Chicago at 8:35 a. m. from the summer White House at Brule and left at 10 a. m. for New York.

160 RANGERS, 1,000 VOLUNTEERS ARE ORGANIZED

GROVER M. CONZET, FORESTRY
COMMISSIONER, IN STATE-MENT

FIRE SEASON USUALLY STARTS
LATE IN AUGUST OR FIRST OF SEPTEMBER

St. Paul, Sept. 4.—(UP)—Minnesota's fire-fighting forces were prepared today for the usual fall forest fires, according to Grover M. Conzet, forestry commissioner.

A force of 160 rangers and patrolmen were stationed on a line between Detroit Lakes and Pine City, while 1,000 men, organized in volunteer corps were also prepared for fire duty.

"The fire season usually starts during the last of August or the first of September," Conzet said. "Because of the late rains this year, however, the woods are still wet so the hazards have not yet begun."

Frost followed by a short dry period would make a "dangerous situation," the forester said. The green leaves would be killed and would make a tinder-like covering on the earth.

All field men of the department have been called from their summer duties, which included clearing of trails used in fire prevention.

Approximately 50 towers are already manned by observers and equipment placed in readiness for work.

Radio stations WCCO and KSTP will also be called into service this year to broadcast weather reports and general conditions in the fire areas.

GENERAL MOTORS PRESIDENT FAVORS HERBERT HOOVER

New York, Sept. 4.—(UP)—Because he believes the country is well managed now and does not need a change in management, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, favors the election of Herbert Hoover as president of the United States.

Sloan is the third official of the corporation to take an active personal political stand. John J. Raskob resigned as chairman of the board to become chairman of the democratic national committee while Pierre DuPont, one of the directors, offered his resignation when he announced his support of Smith.

Sloan made it emphatic that he spoke, not as president of the motor corporation, but merely as a voter. He did not mention any plan to resign, as did Raskob and DuPont.

PROGRESSIVE WING OF REPUBLICANS IN WISCONSIN

FACES REAL TEST OF STRENGTH
TODAY AS VOTERS CAST BALLOTS

INDICATION OF SPLIT TODAY IN PROGRESSIVE VOTE ON GOVERNOR

Madison, Wis., Sept. 4.—(UP)—The progressive wing of the republican party in Wisconsin faced a test of strength today as voters cast their ballots in the state primary.

There were indications of a split in the progressive vote on the gubernatorial nomination while the "regular" wing of the party has placed a candidate in the field in opposition to the progressive, led by Senator Bob La Follette.

Campaigning for his own re-election, Senator La Follette has backed the gubernatorial candidacy of Joseph Beck, congressman. Governor Fred R. Zimmerman, seeking renomination, has a large progressive support.

The anti-La Follette candidate is Walter Kohler, millionaire manufacturer of Kohler, Wis. Senator La Follette is opposed in the primary by George W. Mead, millionaire paper manufacturer.

The prohibition issue has not been stressed by the candidate.

2 KILLED WHEN CAR IS HIT BY FREIGHT TRAIN

Worthington, Minn., Sept. 4.—(UP)—Leroy Nystrom, 22, and Leroy Helms, 14, were killed here late Monday when their motor car was struck by a freight train.

A switch engine started moving a string of box cars that struck the light coupe in which the boys were riding.

GOV. AL SMITH ENGROSSED IN STATE AFFAIRS

GOVERNMENTAL AFFAIRS HAVE ACCUMULATED IN HIS OFFICE

WILL MAP OUT STRATEGIC CAMPAIGN TO CARRY NEW YORK STATE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
By THOMAS L. STOKES

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith turned his attention today to state affairs, first to several governmental matters which have accumulated, and second to the vigorous and thorough campaign with which he and his leaders are planning to combat the Hoover movement now actively under way in this state.

While he is discussing state problems with officials, Gov. Smith will map out with his lieutenants the strategy of the New York presidential campaign. He and his advisers are working on the theory that New York holds the key to the "wet" east.

For this reason, the personality and influence of the democratic candidate will be used largely in the New York campaign. Smith will sound the opening call of the campaign at the state democratic convention at Rochester, October 1 and 2.

The governor's whole campaign speaking itinerary has been built with the New York campaign in mind so that he can be here for the state meeting. He will make an early swing, beginning a little after the middle of this month, will return for the Rochester meeting.

Democrats will make an active bid all over the country, including the farm states, but they figure it will take only a few outside states if they can put over Smith by the modification appeal in the eastern "wet" states.

JOHN COOLIDGE HAS NO JOB AT PRESENT, HE TELLS REPORTERS

Chicago, Sept. 4.—(UP)—John Coolidge, son of President Coolidge, has no job at present, although he has several offers, he told newspapermen when he arrived here today.

Young Coolidge reached Chicago at 8:35 a. m. from the summer White House at Brule and left at 10 a. m. for New York.

160 RANGERS, 1,000 VOLUNTEERS ARE ORGANIZED

GROVER M. CONZET, FORESTRY COMMISSIONER, IN STATEMENT

FIRE SEASON USUALLY STARTS LATE IN AUGUST OR FIRST OF SEPTEMBER

St. Paul, Sept. 4.—(UP)—Minnesota's fire-fighting forces were prepared today for the usual fall forest fires, according to Grover M. Conzet, forestry commissioner.

A force of 160 rangers and patrolmen were stationed on a line between Detroit Lakes and Pine City, while 1,000 men, organized in volunteer corps were also prepared for fire duty.

"The fire season usually starts during the last of August or the first of September," Conzet said. "Because of the late rains this year, however, the woods are still wet so the hazards have not yet begun."

Frost followed by a short dry period would make a "dangerous situation," the forester said. The green leaves would be killed and would make a tinder-like covering on the earth.

All field men of the department have been called from their summer duties, which included clearing of trails used in fire prevention.

Approximately 50 towers are already manned by observers and equipment placed in readiness for work.

Radio stations WCCO and KSTP will also be called into service this year to broadcast weather reports and general conditions in the fire areas.

GENERAL MOTORS PRESIDENT FAVORS HERBERT HOOVER

New York, Sept. 4.—(UP)—Because he believes the country is well managed now and does not need a change in management, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, favors the election of Herbert Hoover as president of the United States.

Sloan is the third official of the corporation to take an active personal political stand. John J. Raskob resigned as chairman of the board to become chairman of the democratic national committee while Pierre DuPont, one of the directors, offered his resignation when he announced his support of Smith.

Sloan made it emphatic that he spoke, not as president of the motor corporation, but merely as a voter. He did not mention any plan to resign, as did Raskob and DuPont.

PROGRESSIVE WING OF REPUBLICANS IN WISCONSIN

FACES REAL TEST OF STRENGTH TODAY AS VOTERS CAST BALLOTS

INDICATION OF SPLIT TODAY IN PROGRESSIVE VOTE ON GOVERNOR

Madison, Wis., Sept. 4.—(UP)—The progressive wing of the republican party in Wisconsin faced a test of strength today as voters cast their ballots in the state primary.

There were indications of a split in the progressive vote on the gubernatorial nomination while the "regular" wing of the party has placed a candidate in the field in opposition to the progressive, led by Senator Bob La Follette.

Campaigning for his own re-election, Senator La Follette has backed the gubernatorial candidacy of Joseph Beck, congressman. Governor Fred R. Zimmerman, seeking renomination, has a large progressive support.

The anti-La Follette candidate is Walter Kohler, millionaire manufacturer of Kohler, Wis. Senator La Follette is opposed in the primary by George W. Mead, millionaire paper manufacturer.

The prohibition issue has not been stressed by the candidate.

ECLIPSED LAST YEAR'S ATTENDANCE BY OVER 1,500 PERSONS

St. Paul, Sept. 4.—(UP)—A record crowd was thought to be in attendance today at the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Livestock Exposition. A Labor Day crowd of 117,322 persons, the largest crowd in several years, passed through the turnstiles Monday. The attendance eclipsed last year's largest crowd by over 1,500 persons.

The program today was to include horse racing, exhibition flying and special vaudeville acts. The selection of the champion in the Boys' and Girls' Pig club was to be made. Jessina Taylor, Forest Lake, won first place in the Boys' and Girls' Heifer club contest Monday. Her entry, "Vellum's Majesty," had produced 109 pounds of butterfat in 60 days.

Traffic in the vicinity of the fair grounds was tied up for two hours Monday afternoon by the thousands of out-of-town visitors. Additional traffic details were to be assigned today.

Attendance at the nightly horse show Monday was said to be a record of several years.

CARBONATION IS BETTER FOR US THAN WE KNOW

Medical Authorities in Leading Hospitals Use Carbonated Drinks Because of Their Healthful Properties

The millions of people who enjoy carbonated beverages every day are treating themselves even better than they think, according to J. F. Cibazar, of Brainerd Bottling Works, Brainerd, for scientists and dieticians have proved that pure carbonated drinks are highly beneficial to the human system.

"It is exceedingly interesting to note the widespread use of a pure carbonated drink like Brainerd Springs Beverages in the leading hospitals," said Mr. Cibazar. "For instance, here is an article by Miss Vera Kindrick, chief dietician of the Springfield (Mass.) Hospital, in which she says:

"We frequently include bottled carbonated beverages in the dietary of our patients. Johns Hopkins Hospital, of Baltimore, I am informed, has for years been a large user of these drinks. Dieticians of the Collins P. Huntington Hospital, which treats cancer cases, say that they have found that the bottled carbonated beverages can be retained on the stomach longer than any other food.

"There are several reasons for the growth of the use of these beverages in the hospital dietary. The main one is that the manufacturer of these drinks is careful to see that only the purest ingredients go into his beverages, and that they are manufactured under sanitary conditions. It has been shown also that such a beverage is not merely sweetened water, but a food product having more caloric value than many foods in common use, and that the gas which puts the bubbles in it are very beneficial to the health."

OVERORGANIZATION OF A CITY

AN editor down in North Carolina bemoans the fact that his town is overorganized. He tells about the number of churches, luncheon clubs, lodges and other bodies which demand the attention of the people. He declares that it is impossible for them all to function so as to give value. One of the authorities on urban sociology was asked by The Modern Woodman for his views on the subject. He said:

"The grouping of people in different activities is greater in the United States than in any other part of the world. It is the natural outcome of American life. It is true that a cursory view of a cynic might result in such a statement as you say has been exploded by the editor in question. The question is not the number of organizations, but the interest aroused in each. Churches with but a few members, for instance, you will find doing much good, due to the fact that the very smallness of the number of the affiliates arouses in each a sense of individual responsibility which is not and can not be found in larger congregations. If it comes to the question of what a person is willing to sacrifice for the promotion of something in which he really is interested, you can point to the sacrifices made and the individual contribution to the support of this church as compared to the average sacrifice and contribution made in the larger unit.

"The fact that the congregation is small is not the governing factor of the measure of its usefulness. If it be admitted that the purpose of the organization is the moral uplift of the people, a closer contact one with another in a personal interest in each other as well as in the cause can not fail to produce results. Let it be granted that a great pulpit orator can not be afforded by so meager a body. I insist that the value of a church is not in the pulpit orator, but in the spirit which underlies the people in the church organization.

"And I might say in passing that in my day as an attorney at law I have heard some of the finest arguments made to a jury of six in a justice of the peace court. There is scarcely a lawyer of experience who will not tell you that it is not the numbers on the jury that count. If the church goes upon the same theory its influence will more likely change the life trend of the individual than the wholesale literary product of the man who speaks to a body of people who study the weather predictions before making up their minds to go to church, and then go simply as a matter of duty.

"I have in mind now a church which has a wonderfully fine preacher, a Doctor of Divinity, if you please. It has a listed membership up towards a thousand. The congregation on Sunday mornings will run possibly 250 or 300. Where are the others? The membership has no sense of individual responsibility. Here is another church with a membership of 100, with at least seventy-five of them there at the services and each one of them interested and working in some of the church's activities. I am not declaring against the church with the larger congregation as not being of service, but the relative good done by the smaller congregation which your editor would obliterate is so much greater that the community can not afford to be without its contribution to the moral influences of the town.

"Now, take your luncheon clubs. You say he complains that there are too many of them in his town. The question is not as to whether there are too many, but as to whether each is functioning and calling to its activities the interest and effort of the members, or a considerable portion of them. All of them are based on fundamental ideals of service. The chances are one hundred to one that the men officering and directing these several clubs would not be devoting that or any other hour of the day to thought in this direction, were it not for the opportunity and urge offered by the club to which they belong.

"Your lodge is in the same situation. If it functions at all it is affording opportunity for some men to have charge of its affairs. The educational value of these groupings have never been given credit for the educational value they are to the men who become interested, are compelled to learn the ritual and thus are made familiar with languages and ideals which would not be brought to them without this body sought and received their support and interest. All the rituals of these bodies with which I am to any degree familiar teach high ideals and excellent tenets. The constant giving of these, the development of the individuals having the responsibility, the expression of the principles, the interest aroused in the other fellow's needs, the social life growing out of the association, all these and more are the fruits of the lodges. You can not say that this is not a valuable result of the lodges, even if the membership happens in that particular community to be small.

"Therefore, the question as to whether a community is over-organized lies in whether the organizations are fulfilling the purpose for which they were created. I belong to quite a number of societies and clubs which, naturally means that I can not give individual effort to each. But there are men who are doing the work in each, and in most of them are doing it well. My support to them is largely one of interest in that which they stand for and what they are trying to do for the good of the world. Some of them are small in numbers in my town, but they are all parts of larger movements and they form my town's contribution to the general work of all the men and women in the United States having the same general purpose. The effort which it put forth in my town may not be a big contribution, but it is a part of the whole.

"The trouble with this fellow is that he centers his eye on a large group as being the only effective one in a community. I insist that the size of the group is not the measure, but rather the guide rule is the interest manifest and the sacrifice willingly made for the promotion of an ideal.

THE Mike Marea center marking of the tarvia at the junction of Trunk Highways No. 2 and 19 continues to stand the strain of traffic and the white and orange markings have not been obliterated. In fact motorists take pains not to run on the marking.

ABOUT the only people who have just cause to be excited about the stockingless fad of school girls (and which may secure imitation by flappers and matrons) are the rayon stocking manufacturers. Bare legs may become as popular as bare arms.

"I go to church," says Edward A. Guest in The American Magazine, "because I want my children to go to church. I want them to know something more of this life than business, sport, and selfish amusement."

THE other day citizens were quite surprised to see a grader operating in the business district alleys.

I belong to quite a number of societies and clubs which, naturally means that I can not give individual effort to each. But there are men who are doing the work in each, and in most of them are doing it well. My support to them is largely one of interest in that which they stand for and what they are trying to do for the good of the world. Some of them are small in numbers in my town, but they are all parts of larger movements and they form my town's contribution to the general work of all the men and women in the United States having the same general purpose. The effort which it put forth in my town may not be a big contribution, but it is a part of the whole.

"The trouble with this fellow is that he centers his eye on a large group as being the only effective one in a community. I insist that the size of the group is not the measure, but rather the guide rule is the interest manifest and the sacrifice willingly made for the promotion of an ideal.

THE Mike Marea center marking of the tarvia at the junction of Trunk Highways No. 2 and 19 continues to stand the strain of traffic and the white and orange markings have not been obliterated. In fact motorists take pains not to run on the marking.

ABOUT the only people who have just cause to be excited about the stockingless fad of school girls (and which may secure imitation by flappers and matrons) are the rayon stocking manufacturers. Bare legs may become as popular as bare arms.

"I go to church," says Edward A. Guest in The American Magazine, "because I want my children to go to church. I want them to know something more of this life than business, sport, and selfish amusement."

THE other day citizens were quite surprised to see a grader operating in the business district alleys.

Cy Olsen's All-Stars at Bertha Sunday, Sept. 9

Sunday, September 9 will end the baseball season in Bertha so far as home games are concerned and Manager Ernie Fisher has scheduled a mighty good card for the grand finale. Fans up in this section will remember the class of baseball that Cy Olsen's All-Stars are able to produce and that is the team which will be pitted against Bertha. The All-Stars are all Southern Minnesota League players, the team being picked from the entire league and Olsen knows how to "pick 'em." It is going to be a hard fought contest as Bertha is playing the sort of baseball that wins pennants. "Lefty" Wilson and "Hooks" Foreman, Bertha's famous colored battery, will do the honors in the box and behind the bat. Game called at 2:30 p. m.

Cy Olsen's All-Stars at

Bertha Sunday, Sept. 9

Sunday, September 9 will end the baseball season in Bertha so far as home games are concerned and Manager Ernie Fisher has scheduled a mighty good card for the grand finale. Fans up in this section will remember the class of baseball that Cy Olsen's All-Stars are able to produce and that is the team which will be pitted against Bertha. The All-Stars are all Southern Minnesota League players, the team being picked from the entire league and Olsen knows how to "pick 'em." It is going to be a hard fought contest as Bertha is playing the sort of baseball that wins pennants. "Lefty" Wilson and "Hooks" Foreman, Bertha's famous colored battery, will do the honors in the box and behind the bat. Game called at 2:30 p. m.

Control Bean Beetle by

Calcium Arsenate Dusts

The Mexican beetle which attacks beans is a leaf-eating insect and can be controlled with calcium arsenate dusts. Either of the following mixtures is effective:

Calcium arsenate	1 pound.
Sulphur (fine dusting grade)	1 pound.
Hydrated lime	4 pounds.

Calcium arsenate 1 pound.
Hydrated lime 7 pounds.

The first application should be made when eggs are found on the leaves, and several successive dustings may be necessary to secure proper control. Use at the rate of 15 to 20 pounds per acre. Take care to dust the plants evenly and thoroughly and to cover the under surfaces of the leaves. A dust gun with an L-nozzle is most efficient in reaching the undersides of the leaves.

Be ready for this Opportunity Season by getting your jars, sugar, kettles, and other supplies, now. Below are given some modern canning methods—clip them for your later use. Big—Ripe—Luscious—ready to melt in your mouth.

Delicious to eat now with cream and sugar, delightful to contemplate eating next winter, when they have been canned so as to capture their wonderful flavor and dainty goodness.

Now is the time to can them—they're at their best. This is a "peach year"—the time when many thoughtful home canners put up enough to do for two years. Be sure you have a goodly portion of your jars filled with this royal fruit—then you and your family and friends can enjoy it during the months to come.

Here are ways to can them—

Hot Pack Methods (Peaches)

This method combines the advantages of the Open Kettle and Cold Pack Methods. The fruit has the same texture throughout the year, and any bacteria are killed in the pre-cooking process. Also the fruit is kept from discoloring. Special instructions:

1. Remove skins by blanching (unless ripe enough to do so without this process).
2. Add to boiling syrup—

which has been made from $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sugar for each cup of water and has been boiled 5 minutes.

3. Precook for 5 minutes at simmering point.
4. Fill container while boiling hot and "paddle" the sides before placing cover on, and process immediately.
5. Process for 12-15 minutes.
6. Seal immediately. It is not necessary to add extra juice.

Cold Pack Method

Have ready syrup made of from $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sugar for each cup water, boiled from 3 to 5 minutes. Allow about one cup syrup and one cracked peach pit to each quart fruit.

Prepare the peaches one jar at a time. Put in large square of cheesecloth or wire basket and blanch by plunging into boiling water. Leave 3 minutes, then cold-dip by immersing quickly in cold water. Peel with aid of silver knife around stem end, halve, remove pits and pack in jars, concave side up if for exhibition purposes. Pour hot syrup over peaches at once and adjust tops loosely; place jars in bath of hot water and let boil for 15 to 25 minutes. After they have come out of the canning bath they should be sealed at once.

OPEN KETTLE—Cook peaches in a medium syrup, in a sauce pan, until tender. Place in hot sterile jars, fill with boiling syrup and seal immediately. If desired, the syrup the peaches are cooked in may be retained and used with other fruit for jelly making, and fresh syrup poured over the cooked fruit.

OVEN METHOD—Wash and pack fruit into hot sterile jars to within 1 inch of the top. Put sterile rubbers in position. Pour over the fruit the boiling hot syrup to cover. "Paddle" to remove air bubbles. Adjust lid loosely. Place in oven at 275° for one hour. Remove and seal immediately.

PRESSURE COOKER—Follow general pressure cooker directions. Sterilize at 5 to 10 pounds pressure for 10 minutes.

ARRANGE RITES FOR SMASHUP VICTIMS

Three Killed, Six Injured on Highway No. 2 Tragedy Early Sunday

INJURED ARE RECOVERING

Miss Esther Erickson, Miss Alvina Daniels, Andrew Lawrence, on Death List

Funeral arrangements for the three victims in the automobile-truck smashup on highway No. 2 about four miles west of Brainerd early Sunday were completed yesterday afternoon.

Andrew Lawrence, of Staples, driver of the death car, was to be buried this afternoon at the Pillager cemetery. Services were to be conducted at 4 p. m. today from the Methodist church, Pillager.

The funeral of Miss Esther Erickson will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 2:15 o'clock from the residence at 316 North Tenth street and at 2:30 o'clock from the Bethlehem Lutheran church. Interment will be at Evergreen cemetery.

Last rites for Miss Alvina Daniels will be held tomorrow at 8 a. m. from the St. Francis Catholic church with interment at Evergreen cemetery.

The three came to their deaths when the Hudson sedan they were riding in sideswiped a truck owned by J. C. Nunn of Fergus Falls.

Lawrence, age about 36, a man with a wife and young child, met instant death, his head being crushed.

Miss Esther Erickson, aged 22 years, was also killed instantly, death being attributed to a fractured neck and crushed chest. She is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Clara Delaney, one of the occupants of the car who was injured, Mrs. Albin Gronquist, Mrs. Selma Beck and Mrs. Mable Trieme and one brother, Henry Erickson.

Miss Alvina Daniels, aged 19, died on the way to the hospital. She did not regain consciousness after the crash.

The six other occupants of the car were injured, reports today indicating that all will survive.

Mrs. Clara Delaney, 29, wife of L. B. Delaney, 1314 Fourth Avenue South, Minneapolis, a sister of Miss Erickson, received scalp wounds and head injuries.

Mrs. Ole Peterson, resident near Stoner Dam, west of Brainerd suffered from scalp and head wounds with left shoulder and left hand injuries.

Her daughter, Miss Alice Peterson, 17, had head and spine injuries.

John Lindholm, of St. Paul was reported to have chest injuries.

Harry Kennedy, of Staples, was reported to have slight injuries.

An unknown Staples man received slight injuries. He left the hospital a short time after being admitted without giving his name.

According to the story of Mrs. Delaney, as given to Sheriff Claus A. Theorin, the party of five women motored to the Pillager fair with two Brainerd men and on their return to Brainerd stopped at the Little Pine dance pavilion in Cass county. The Brainerd men did not dance and returned home. At the dance she met Lawrence who offered to take the five women home to Brainerd.

Lawrence, according to the story told by Mrs. Delaney, was driving at high speed, 50 miles an hour and swerving from side to side. They passed a car and shortly after saw the truck approaching.

The girls yelled to Lawrence, she said, to keep his side of the road and he replied: "I can judge my distance."

There was a crash as the sedan sideswiped the truck, tore off its running board and dipped under the truck platform. Heavily loaded with furniture, the truck was tipped on its side in the middle of the road. Ted Knott, Fergus Falls, driver and S. C. Lewis, Duluth salesman who owned furniture and was moving to Fergus Falls, were uninjured. The truck is a Graham two and a half ton truck and the furniture said P. J. Nunn, Fergus Falls, who owned the truck, weighed about 5,200 pounds.

The death car had its top torn off and the side sliced where it sideswiped the truck. Those who sat on the steering wheel side met death and injury.

In the front seat were Lawrence, driver, Alice Peterson, center, and a Staples man holding Mrs. Delaney on his lap. On the rear seat the Erickson girl sat on the lap of Alvina Daniels, both killed, Mrs. Peterson and two Staples men.

Mrs. Delaney told the sheriff the driver was not under the influence of liquor and that there was no drinking of liquor in the car.

An Essex car driven by Albin Lindberg of Foley was driving ahead of the truck at a slow pace and Lindberg is reported to have told Pillager people that Lawrence almost hit him as he swept along. A minute later Lindberg heard the crash and turned about and picked up four women. One of these, Alvina Daniels died on the way to Brainerd and the other three women are now in the hospital.

The body of Lawrence was thrown to one side of the road and the body of Miss Erickson was found on the other side of the road.

The truck was not badly damaged and repairs were made at Brainerd. At about 6 o'clock Sunday evening the truck occupants returned to the scene of the accident which is half a mile this side of the Cass county line in Crow Wing county, recovered the furniture and resumed their way to Fergus Falls. No arrests were made and no inquest will be held. The truck driver was held blameless.

Car Turns Somersault

While driving near Little Fork Saturday evening A. W. Gronquist, accompanied by Gust Wahlstrom met with an accident, their car turning over into the ditch when it collided with a car occupied by Iowa people. Occupants of both cars received minor injuries. Mr. Gronquist is a brother-in-law of Miss Esther Erickson who met death in the crash on highway No. 2 early Sunday morning.

Cars Run Into Ditch

Within a quarter of a mile from the tragic accident on highway No. 2 and about the same time, two cars struck loose sand and ran into ditches on the side of the road. Minor injuries were reported. The cars were filled with young people returning from the dance at Little Pine resort which is in Cass county.

Lawrence, age about 36, a man with a wife and young child, met instant death, his head being crushed.

Miss Esther Erickson, aged 22 years, was also killed instantly, death being attributed to a fractured neck and crushed chest. She is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Clara Delaney, one of the occupants of the car who was injured, Mrs. Albin Gronquist, Mrs. Selma Beck and Mrs. Mable Trieme and one brother, Henry Erickson.

Miss Alvina Daniels, aged 19, died on the way to the hospital. She did not regain consciousness after the crash.

The six other occupants of the car were injured, reports today indicating that all will survive.

Mrs. Clara Delaney, 29, wife of L. B. Delaney, 1314 Fourth Avenue South, Minneapolis, a sister of Miss Erickson, received scalp wounds and head injuries.

Mrs. Ole Peterson, resident near Stoner Dam, west of Brainerd suffered from scalp and head wounds with left shoulder and left hand injuries.

Her daughter, Miss Alice Peterson, 17, had head and spine injuries.

John Lindholm, of St. Paul was reported to have chest injuries.

Harry Kennedy, of Staples, was reported to have slight injuries.

An unknown Staples man received slight injuries. He left the hospital a short time after being admitted without giving his name.

According to the story of Mrs. Delaney, as given to Sheriff Claus A. Theorin, the party of five women motored to the Pillager fair with two Brainerd men and on their return to Brainerd stopped at the Little Pine dance pavilion in Cass county. The Brainerd men did not dance and returned home. At the dance she met Lawrence who offered to take the five women home to Brainerd.

Lawrence, according to the story told by Mrs. Delaney, was driving at high speed, 50 miles an hour and swerving from side to side. They passed a car and shortly after saw the truck approaching.

The girls yelled to Lawrence, she said, to keep his side of the road and he replied: "I can judge my distance."

There was a crash as the sedan sideswiped the truck, tore off its running board and dipped under the truck platform. Heavily loaded with furniture, the truck was tipped on its side in the middle of the road. Ted Knott, Fergus Falls, driver and S. C. Lewis, Duluth salesman who owned furniture and was moving to Fergus Falls, were uninjured. The truck is a Graham two and a half ton truck and the furniture said P. J. Nunn, Fergus Falls, who owned the truck, weighed about 5,200 pounds.

The death car had its top torn off and the side sliced where it sideswiped the truck. Those who sat on the steering wheel side met death and injury.

In the front seat were Lawrence, driver, Alice Peterson, center, and a Staples man holding Mrs. Delaney on his lap. On the rear seat the Erickson girl sat on the lap of Alvina Daniels, both killed, Mrs. Peterson and two Staples men.

Mrs. Delaney told the sheriff the driver was not under the influence of liquor and that there was no drinking of liquor in the car.

An Essex car driven by Albin Lindberg of Foley was driving ahead of the truck at a slow pace and Lindberg is reported to have told Pillager people that Lawrence almost hit him as he swept along. A minute later Lindberg heard the crash and turned about and picked up four women. One of these, Alvina Daniels died on the way to Brainerd and the other three women are now in the hospital.

The body of Lawrence was thrown to one side of the road and the body of Miss Erickson was found on the other side of the road.

The truck was not badly damaged and repairs were made at Brainerd. At about 6 o'clock Sunday evening the truck occupants returned to the scene of the accident which is half a mile this side of the Cass county line in Crow Wing county, recovered the furniture and resumed their way to Fergus Falls. No arrests were made and no inquest will be held. The truck driver was held blameless.

Car Turns Somersault

While driving near Little Fork Saturday evening A. W. Gronquist, accompanied by Gust Wahlstrom met with an accident, their car turning over into the ditch when it collided with a car occupied by Iowa people. Occupants of both cars received minor injuries. Mr. Gronquist is a brother-in-law of Miss Esther Erickson who met death in the crash on highway No. 2 early Sunday morning.

Cars Run Into Ditch

Within a quarter of a mile from the tragic accident on highway No. 2 and about the same time, two cars struck loose sand and ran into ditches on the side of the road. Minor injuries were reported. The cars were filled with young people returning from the dance at Little Pine resort which is in Cass county.

THE FINE CAR OF LOW PRICE

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgewood

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

PRETTY Janet Wilde is the daughter of the great actor, Fenimore Wilde, a Broadway favorite. Her brother Frank is a spendthrift like his father, and between them she is hard put to keep the home going. She mothers them both and, on the eve of her father's big opening, manages to keep an insistent creditor at bay after the actor suffers a heart attack in a quarrel with him. Janet is greatly worried over her father's health and her brother's wild habits, but she is loyal to both. A young and impetuous actor named Gordon Pryor has fallen in love with her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

JANET went downstairs to meet Gordon, who was in the hall. He stood at the foot of the stairs, looking up at her.

"Hold it!" he called, in laughing admiration. "Hold it; while I admire! A little brighter smile, Miss Wilde! Remember that you are coming down to meet a charming young man, who is crazy about you, so kindly register a little interest. Camera!"

Janet stood there on the stairs, humoring him as she looked down fondly at him. What a dear he was! And what a child-like every other artist. He was tall and lithe, with fair hair, and expressive blue eyes. It was only a matter of time, Janet felt, before Gordon Pryor would be a star, and yet, she divined, his sense of humor would save him from the appalling vanity of most successful and very good looking young actors.

"Let's go!" Gordon said, "I have a cab outside."

"Young actors out of a job should not take taxis," Janet reproved him.

"I quite agree with you," he smiled. "But young gods are entitled to a chariot."

Janet got into the cab, and Gordon possessed himself of one of her hands.

"I've found a little place for lunch, where we can be quiet," he told her. "It's half Russian and half French, and they have only a three-piece orchestra which plays unobtrusively—so that we can talk."

"You've always been so interested in that!" Janet laughed at him.

"But of course! Last night realized what I have known before—that I could not expect to live without you. So what does a young man do under such circumstances?"

"I'm sure I don't know," Janet said fondly.

"The young man determines to ask the girl to become his wife," Gordon went on in the same half-serious half-gay tones, "when naturally he makes up his mind to propose in the most etiquette way possible. The best authorities advise me to take the young girl's hand."

"But I don't think a taxicab is the place to do it," Janet answered, in somewhat of his own spirit. She did not know why, but she was vaguely disappointed. She adored humor, but she was quite sure that she wanted even a flavor of it at such a moment? Would anyone feeling a tremendous emotion be humorously inclined? Then she remembered how she had chafed Gordon that morning over the wire, and perhaps he was merely trying to re-echo what he imagined would be her mood.

"I tried to talk to you over the telephone," he reminded her, as though penetrating her thoughts. "And if, Janet, my dear, I sound flippant—it is only because I feel so tremendously. I'll tell you what we will do! You know I adore you. That I think is obvious. We won't say another word about it, but when we have had lunch, I will just lean across the table and say: 'Is it yes?' and then you shall tell me."

"All right," Janet agreed. "Do that."

"I've paid you the compliment," he went on more gravely, "of ignoring one subject—money."

"Meaning?"

"That I know money won't influence you," he continued, looking out of the taxi window. "I believe, rightly or wrongly, that I can act."

"Of course you can," Janet said warmly. "You had practically nothing to do in 'The Terrible Mrs. Tarquin' as Godfrey Brooks, but you made an absolute little cameo out of the part, and if the daughter of Fenimore Wilde does not know acting—well, she ought to!"

He raised her hand to his lips and kissed it.

"I would prefer praise from you than from any critic in New York," he assured her gravely. "Of course I lack any influence in the theatres, and you know well enough how much 'pull' has to do with it."

"Father would help there," Janet put in with instinctive generosity. "Look how close he is to John Montague." She went on to relate the incident of Montague's visit that morning, until they arrived at the restaurant in a quiet street west of the Avenue.

"Oh, I think I like this place," Janet said, when they had found a table, and Gordon had given his order.

"I am not going to refer to the question, or rather to your answer, until after lunch," Gordon explained. "But I had to find somewhere to bring you that was at least sympathetic. As you know, I lived in a furnished room—so this was the only thing I could think of."

"You won't be in a furnished room for ever," Janet comforted him.

"You are all artist, yourself," Gordon assured her.

Janet shook her head. "How little you know me, Gordon! Didn't you know that Janet Wilde was two people?"

"A dual personality?" he smiled. "Now that," Janet went on seriously, "but two strains of blood always fighting within me. On one side, I am all my father's daughter, and there is sufficient temperament in my dear Papa to satisfy most people! Then, there is my mother's side. You see, Mother was just a dear little New England schoolmarm when she fell in love with that good-looking actor—Father—and I cannot imagine two greater opposites than they were."

"So far," he said smilingly, "you've not said anything that makes you less desirable as an actor's wife! Why, you are everything, all rolled up into one beautiful person. You aren't conceited enough. I don't think you know the magic of your eyes, the lure of that hair of yours!"

It was then that Janet noticed a young man with a dark, good-looking face and black hair who was sitting opposite to her. He was looking straight at her, and at that moment he got up from his table, stooped and brought from underneath it a violin-case.

He walked to the end of the room where the musicians had just finished a number. He spoke to the pianist, who nodded assent, and a moment later, the young man began playing a haunting melody, while the pianist vamped an accompaniment.

And it was perfectly obvious to everybody in the room that the dark-haired young violinist was playing directly at Janet.

Gordon was speechless from surprise for a moment. Then his face took on an angry expression.

"I don't propose to stand for this," he said menacingly.

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated men, women, children, and particularly old folks, had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, biliousness, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.
